Subject Price adjustments due to increased energy costs

Dear customers

in the last weeks and months the energy costs and the fossil fuels have developed dynamically and increased drastically. According to intensive observation of the market, this will continue to be the case for the next time.

Our suppliers in the area of raw materials and supplies are already imposing individual energy surcharges on the goods delivered to us. The increased transport costs due to the higher fuel prices are also already reaching our purchasing department.

Furthermore, this affects the company Beuthauser also in the area of electricity and gas.

From April on we will charge an energy surcharge of 7 %. The surcharge will be levied on the day of delivery. We also reserve the right to make dynamic adjustments until further notice should the market again develop strongly upwards or downwards.

Unfortunately, we see no other possibility to put the increased costs into perspective.

We have to pass on the increased costs to the market in order to ensure a sustainable and stable supplychain for our customers.

Finally, we would like to point out that the "energy surcharge" we levy does not reflect the additional costs actually incurred. As soon as these costs return to a "normal" level, we assume that this surcharge will also be completely eliminated.

We are aware that the current inflationary developments are extremely challenging for you and for us, both at work and privately. All the more reason, therefore, to hope for your understanding.

Best regards
